Visual Culture and National Identity

A Symposium

will take place at the Van Gogh Museum on June 10-11, 2010.

The symposium aims to examine the interplay between nationalism, national identity, the visual arts and visual culture, by presenting diverse theoretical perspectives on the questions that are implicated in the debate about these issues. Please find more information about the symposium's theoretical point of departure and programme on this website. You can also register for the symposium and the accompanying workshops via this website.
